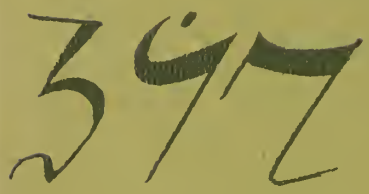
Let us admire the colors that embellish the phoenix, neither nature nor art have ever made anything so beautiful. The back of his golden neck is covered with a down of saffron. Purple shines upon his throat. Rays of gold and fire shoot in a thousand lights from his wings impatient to measure the immensity of space. His tail more beautiful than those of the birds harnessed to Juno's chariot, is scintillating with reflections of purest gold. He does not display his riches like the peacock tormented by stupid pride. These rich colors emerge from a background of purest iris, shading into each other with a magic that enchants the eye. At one time it seems that his grace exceeds his beauty, at other times, his beauty exceeds his grace. His eye has the brillance of the hyacinth. His colors can only be compared to the lustre of precious stones blended by the skill of the artist. A double crest as if made by the hands of the Graces decorates the head of the phoenix. It covers his brain, seat of his intelligence, workshop of his meditations, depository of his knowledge.

Neither man nor god troubles to feed the phoenix. He feeds on nothing but the gentle breath of the zephyr, the sweet juices of perfumes, the tears of incense and the sun's rays. He drinks only ambrosia, nectar, the dew falling from the heavens or the innocent mists falling from the rivers, the lakes and the seas. These are his dishes, his beverages and his nourishment. He does not eat seeds, the hope of the ploughman. He does not ravish the rich harvests. He is neither brigand nor thief. He is an honest bird. He respects the joy of men and their loves. That he should live so long is the greatest mystery in the world. For him the centuries are years, the minutes are days, the days are hours, and so he is named the Eternal Bird. He is the faithful companion of light and for her he lives, rejuvenated in order to always live with her.

When the phoenix has lived five hundred years, it builds itself a nest in the branches of an oak or in a palm tree. In this it collects cinnamon, spikenard, and myrrh and of these materials builds a pile on which it deposits itself and dying, breathes out its last breath amidst odors. He then returns to life for the few moments it takes to beat his wings until he has kindled his nest in flames. These flames will destroy him but in the same spot from these ashes a new phoenix is born destined to live as long as its predecessor. When the young phoenix has grown up and gained sufficient strength, it lifts its nest from the tree (its own cradle and its parent's sepulchre) and carries it to the city of Heliopolis in Egypt and deposits it in the temple of the Sun.



The only Biblical reference to the phoenix

In the middle ages magical Alchemy preceded scientific chemistry, above symbolism and Kabalistic signs were known as the PHOENIX

Phoenix, Fabulous Bird of Mythology

From antiquity until well into modern times, the fabulous Phoenix has found its place time and time again in the life of man.

There have been islands and constellations named for the Phoenix. The BIRD has found its way into many a design on coats of arms. Queen Elizabeth chose the Phoenix as her emblem.

The first United States seal in 1732 had a phoenix as a part of the design. The City of San Francisco also had the Phoenix as the design on its seal after the great fire of San Francisco. The state of Hawaii had a seal designed in 1952 with the BIRD PHOENIX to represent the change from monarchy to a freer form of government.

The great seal of VIRGINIA, reverse side, 1877, bears a Phoenix.

The 1967 Dedication Pays Tribute to . . .

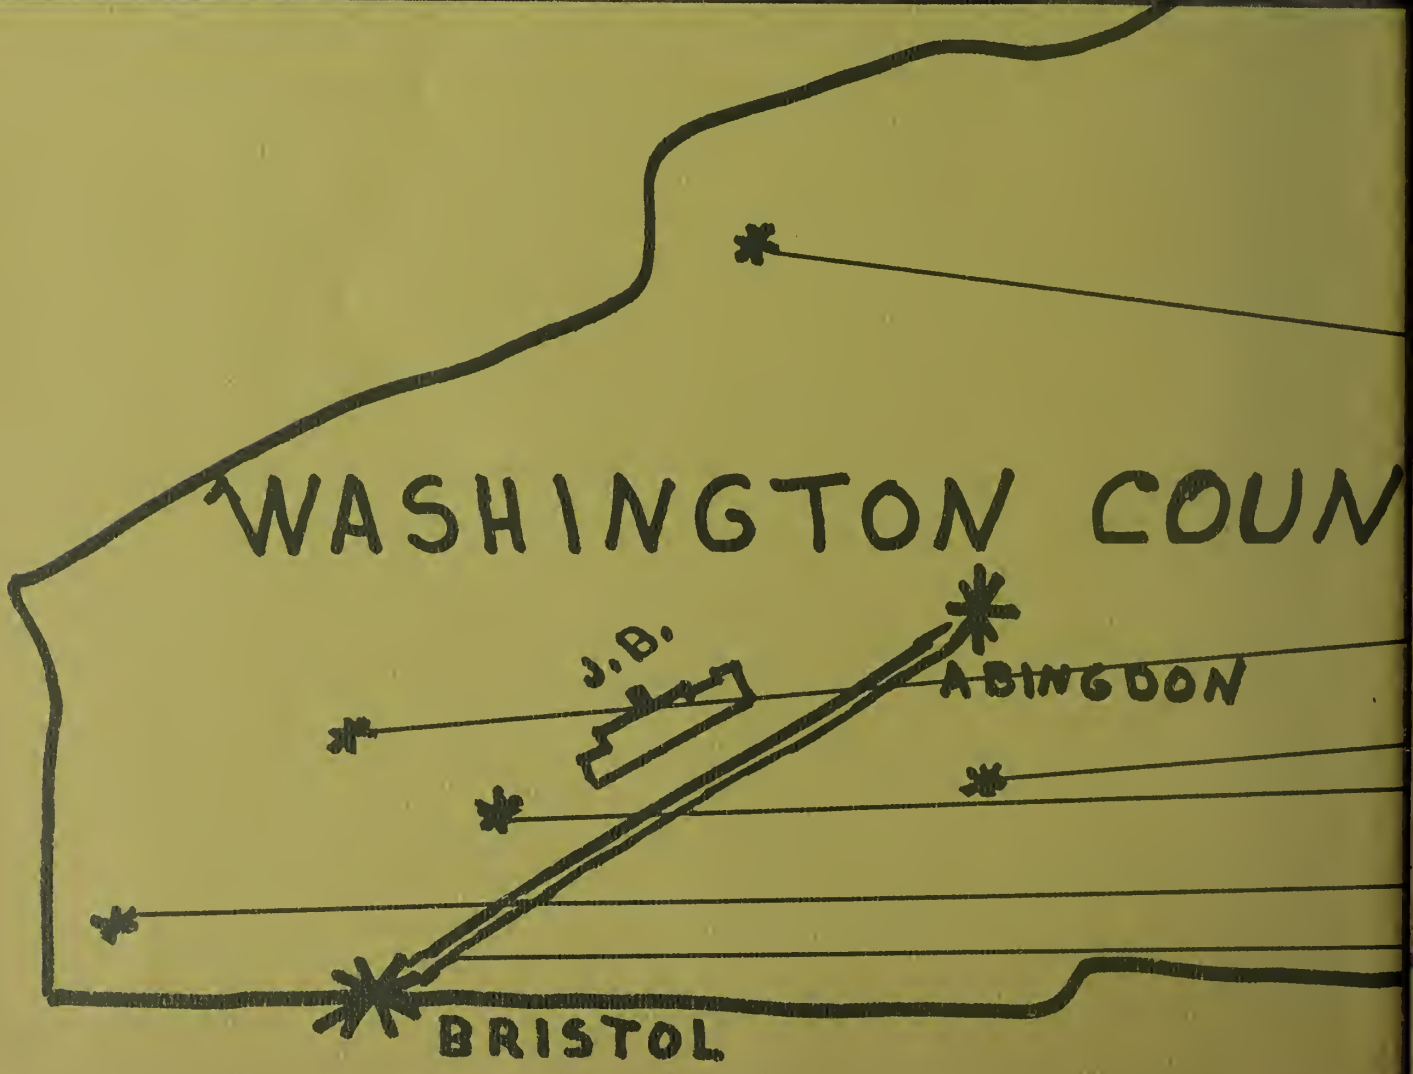
There are many whom we can admire, there are many whom we like, and there are many whom we love. But, there are few to whom we can attribute all these characteristics, one of these is Mrs. Mildred T. Foster.

Devoted both to her work and to her students, she has won the admiration and affection of her students, her friends, and the faculty.

It is with sincere appreciation and warm regard that we humbly dedicate the 1967 PHOENIX to . . .

Mrs. Mildred T. Foster

John S. Battle High School———



John S. Battle High School is now in its eighth year of operation with an enrollment of 1208 and a faculty of 63. A great fleet of school buses bring the majority of students attending the high school in from all parts of the county. More than 50% of the students enrolled at John Battle live closer to another school in the county or the city of Bristol than they do to John Battle. Eight years ago when John Battle opened its doors to the students for the first time, there was no stadium, no field house, no parking lot, no freshman or 8th grade classes to recall just a few things about that first year. Today, eight years later, there have been many changes in curriculum, numbers of students and faculty and staff, additions inside and out. Many of these changes and the outstanding events of the current year will be shown in this volume of the yearbook.

MISS PHOENIX OF 1967

Each year, Senior girls at John Battle High School vie for the honor of becoming Miss Phoenix, the fabulous bird of mythology for whom John Battle's yearbook is named.

Miss Phoenix is rated on photogenic attributes and personal qualities.

Pat Tabor, First Runner-up

So when the newborn Phoenix first is seen
Her feathered subjects all adore their queen,
And while she makes her progress through the East,
From every grove her numerous train's increased;
Each poet of the air her glory sings,
And round him the pleased audience clap their wings.

dedicated to the

from the CLASS OF 1968

With deep regret we say farewell
To Seniors who are dear,
They will be missed by Juniors,
Who quietly brush a tear.
You started on a journey
Just four short years ago,
And now we bow in honor
As to greater heights you go.
We wish we could but give you
A blessing and a crown,
With a jewel for each kindness
And a star for the friend we've found.
We shall always long remember
Each one of you . . . but now –
We say farewell, and once again
To you we humbly bow.

Nancy Benfield, a varsity debater at John Battle, received recognition of "excellence in debating" in the annual debate tournament at the University of Richmond in March 1967. Nancy and her partner, Eddie Godsey, debated three rounds on the issue of "Resolved: that the U.S. Foreign Aid should be limited to non-military aid," and Nancy was recognized as fourth place individual speaker out of 400 debaters. This is Nancy's third year in debating.

The purpose of the Young Women's Christian Association is to build a fellowship of women and girls devoted to the task of realizing in our common life those ideals of personal and social living to which we are committed by our faith as Christians. The Y-Teens organization of John S. Battle High has worked hard to achieve this purpose by entering in many of the service activities the Y sponsors.

The Annual Staff for the current year has had its ups and downs. One of the downs was that the staff's copies of the receipts for yearbooks sold were thrown in the trash. OO-OO-OOh, was that a mess! When a part of them were returned they were heavily encrusted with chili, the menu for the day. The staff survived this crises and worked toward getting out the biggest and best annual yet. An up was planning and carrying out the 1967 annual, the pride and joy of the staff, which is presented to the student body and faculty of John S. Battle High School.

Swinging Synchronized Style in Music

The TROJAN BAND, made up of seventy-some members, represent John Battle School during the fall months at football games, local and near-by festivals and parades.

At the conclusion of the football season, the band members concern themselves with concert activities. Two major concerts are presented yearly; the winter concert and the spring concert, both on the stage of John Battle High School.

Battle Captures Loop Golf Title

John Battle's Trojans won the District Six golf championship by a 20-point margin over second-place Chilhowie at the King College golf course here yesterday.

Coach Jimmy Hughes' Trojans wound up with 343 points. Other scores were Chilhowie, 363, Holston, 420, and Saltville, 453.

Gary Frye of Battle was the medalist with a 79. Mike Berry was tops for Chilhowie with an 86, while T. D. Woodward had a 91 for Saltville and Ronnie Barr posted a 92 for Holston.

Battle now has the option of going to the Group II state golf tournament, set at Winchester in two weeks. The Trojans haven't decided if they will participate.

Mr. E. B. Stanley, Superintendent, Washington County Schools

Mr. E. B. Stanley is now in his fourteenth year as superintendent of schools in Washington County.

His fine leadership has been instrumental in building four new high schools in the county, of which John Battle is the largest, and several new elementary schools.

He has a rich and varied background in education, having attended Hiwassee College, Emory and Henry College, and George Peabody College for Teachers, MA. Professional experience includes teaching and principal-ships as well as superintendent of schools prior to coming to Washington County.

Mr. Stanley is very active in church, civic and education associations on both the local and state levels.

Congratulations, Mr. Stanley! Through your guidance those who work with you will become experienced and capable of following the path toward their goal, just as you have gained experience and fostered your knowledge in your difficult administrative position.
